

THE NEXT WORLD'S FAIR.

Alaska—Yukon—Pacific—Exposition at Seattle, in 1909, Now Claims Attention—Management Surprises Country by Not Asking for Government Aid—Its Progress to Date.

By Frank L. Merrick.

Now that the Jamestown Ter-Centennial Exposition has closed, all eyes are turned toward the next great world's fair, the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, which will be held at Seattle, Washington, opening June 1, and closing October 15, 1909.

This exposition will be held in a section of the country where world fairs are new and for that and many other reasons it is expected to be a success, beneficially, educationally, artistically and financially.

Work on the grounds and buildings of the exposition is well under way and the management is determined to have everything in readiness by opening day. This has been written about all expositions in late years, but the promise has never been completely fulfilled. The officials of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, however, have started out with a completed opening day idea above everything else, and if they do not carry out their plan it will not be because western energy has not been expended in the task.

The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition promises to be different from former world's fairs in many ways, but one policy stands out so far above any of the rest that the entire press of the country is commenting favorably upon it. No assistance has been asked from Uncle Sam to carry on the work! That policy must be conceded as original.

All the management desires is for the United States government to participate in the same manner as foreign countries and the different States by erecting buildings and installing exhibits therein. Former expositions have been aided by the government in many ways. Outright gifts of large sums of money have been made by Congress to some world's fairs, while others have negotiated loans from Uncle Sam, some of which were paid back and some of which were not. Some expositions have received donations and loans. As stated before the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition will ask for neither. A clause pledging this policy has been inserted in the congressional bill making provision for participation only by Uncle Sam.

Since the United States government began to patronize expositions down to the Jamestown fair, Congress has appropriated a total of $28,752,251 for world's fairs. Only $485,000 of this money has been spent west of the Rocky mountains, the Lewis and Clark Exposition, one of the most successful ever held, receiving the benefit of that amount.

The bill that has been introduced at the present session of Congress provides an appropriation of $1,175,000 to enable Uncle Sam to take advantage of the opportunity for effective advertising. The money will be apportioned as follows:

Government building $200,000. Exhibit $350,000.
Alaska, building $100,000. Exhibit, $200,000.
Hawaii, building $50,000. Exhibit $75,000.

Philippines, building $75,000. Exhibit, $75,000.
Fisheries, building $50,000.
The fisheries exhibit is included in the general display.

On June 1, last before a crowd of fifteen thousand persons, ground breaking ceremonies were held, with many prominent men making addresses, among whom was Hon. John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American Republics, representing President Roosevelt. From that date to the present time work has been going on rapidly upon the exposition grounds. Most of the grading and clearing has been finished. All of the principal roadways, avenues, circles and plazas have been completed. The Administration Building has been erected and occupied by the executive force for several months. Contracts have been let for the construction of five large buildings and several manufacturers buildings, Agriculture building, Auditorium, Palace of Fine Arts and Machinery Hall. The three latter buildings will be permanent structures, built of buff brick with terra cotta trimmings. The "A-Y-P," as it is sometimes called in Seattle, will differ again from some former fairs in that some of its exhibit palaces will be permanent structures. The grounds are located on the property of the Washington University, a State institution, and after the exposition is over the permanent buildings and those substantially built will be taken over by the college to be used for educational purposes.

The purpose of the exposition, which is to exploit Alaska and Yukon and the countries bordering on the Pacific Ocean, is receiving much favorable comment throughout the country.

Famous Graft Case Decided At Last. Supreme Court Interprets Disputed Statute.

The United States Supreme Court, in an opinion rendered by Justice Peckham, decided the "Graf" coloring case, which has been in the courts more than five years, holding that the addition of caramel to distilled spirits is not a violation of law. Warwick M. Hough, the attorney in the case, made the following statement of the case:

"What is known as the 'Graf case,' or the 'caramel coloring case,' was started in 1902 by the seizure of three packages of double-stamp whisky on the premises of the A. Graf Distilling Company, in St. Louis, on a charge made by the revenue agent that a part of the original contents of the packages had been abstracted, and the amounts so abstracted had been supplied by the introduction of other spirits, which were white, and that the color was restored by the addition of sugar coloring, or prune juice.

"On the trial of the case in District Court, that court held that proof of the addition of coloring matter was not proof of the addition of other spirits, and was not proof which such presumption would follow, but the court further held that the addition of caramel coloring was a violation of the law, because caramel was 'anything else' within the meaning of that term as used in Section 3455 of the revised statutes of the United States.

In accordance with that view of the law the District Court held the packages forfeited to the Government. On appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit the judgment of the lower court was reversed on the ground that there was a variance between the proof and the allegations in the information, since the allegations of the information were that the package contained other distilled spirits of different spirits, whereas the proof went no further than to establish the fact that caramel coloring had been added after the contents of the packages were reduced by the addition of water.

"The Government then filed an amended information, charging only the addition of caramel. The District Court then sustained a demurrer to the information, which was filed by the claimant on the ground that caramel was not a taxable article, and that Congress, in enacting section 3455, was only intending to prohibit the use of a stamped package for the purpose of shipping and disposing of anything else of the same kind which was, subject to, an internal revenue tax. The Government appealed from this decision to the United States Court of Appeals for the eighth circuit, which some months after hearing the argument on the appeal, certified the following questions to the Supreme Court of the United States:

"First—Does the sale of a barrel of distilled spirits, stamped, branded and marked so as to show that the contents have been duly inspected and that the tax thereon has been paid, into which burnt sugar or caramel has been introduced after such stamping, branding and marking by an officer of the revenue, authorize a seizure and forfeiture thereof to the United States under the provisions of section 3455 of the revised statutes of the United States?

"Second—Does the phrase 'anything else,' as employed in section 3455 of the revised statutes include substances that are not in themselves taxable under the laws of the United States?"

The Supreme Court of the United States Tuesday answered both of these questions in the negative.

BLACK EYES.

EARLY MORNING BLAZE.

At 5:30 on Thursday morning, some lace curtains in the rooms of Mr. Lyman Graham, just opposite this office, on Main street, caught fire and were blazing at a merry rate when discovered. The fire boys were notified and extinguished the blaze with a chemical extinguisher, without turning in an alarm. The cause of the blaze was unknown, the supposition being that mice nibbling at matches started the fire.

Beyond the destruction of the lace curtains and smoking the room, the damage was only nominal.
